TASTING NOTES

Awarded 96 Points - Luca Maroni, Leading Italian Wine Critic

Hailing from Sicily, this Grillo is fresh and easy-drinking, but with a slight savoury note that gives it a distinctly Sicilian personality. It has some peach, white fruits and floral nuances with grapefruit and herbal minerality.

Sicily is a very unique place offering a great diversity of terroirs within a relatively small area. Vineyards are dotted around this great island on either mountainous slopes, shorelines or on the foothills of a volcano. The name Gergenti derives from the old Sicilian name for the town of Agrigento.

An ode to Sicilian viticulture, a kaleidoscope of flavors and aromas that intertwine in a unique experience. Wines born from fascinating landscapes, where tradition merges with pristine nature. From the slopes of Mount Etna to the sun-kissed coasts, each terroir yields fine grapes that turn into glasses of different shades. The strength of the volcano, the freshness of the sea, the history of an island: all this is encapsulated in a sip of Gergenti wines.
