TASTING NOTES

"La Ciboise" (la see-BWAHZ) Rouge is produced in Luberon, France located in the southeastern area of the Rhône Valley. It has a continental climate due to its proximity to the Alps. One of Europe's oldest wine regions dating back to 750 BC, it received official AOC status in 1988 and is known for producing charming value wines. Known as one of the most sun-drenched regions in France, it is frequently visited and cherished by tourists.

A blend of Grenache and Syrah grapes with a lovely ruby red colour. Dominant red-stewed fruit, morello cherry and pepper. Elegant tannins and a lengthy finish.

Winery notes (2019 Vintage)

"The Luberon Regional Natural Park acts as the setting for the Luberon vineyards. These currently are spread over 36 villages, all situated in the south east of the Vaucluse department. Classified as Mediterranean but under the influence of a more continental climate from the Alpes and Rhone Valley. The Luberon is one of the most sun-drenched regions in France with Aromas are complex and fine with notes of blackfruit (blackberry / blackcurrant). The palate is fruity with lovely notes of liquorice. Silky tannins. Elegant wine with lovely freshness. The wine is aged 6 months in concrete vats."

92/100 Cameron Douglas MS, May 2022 (2019 Vintage)

"Complex and enticing bouquet with a mix of aromas from stony soils to plum and cherry, granite and baking spices. Moderately weighted, dry and textured on the palate with an abundance of firm-ish tannins then red fruit flavours biting first. A floral, nut and leesy quality adds complexity add charm, depth of flavour as well as texture and length. Well made and ready to drink from 2022 through 2028+. Great as an accompaniment to food including cheese."

4 ½ Stars & 91/100 Sam Kim, Wine Orbit, May 2022 (2019 Vintage)

"Brightly fruited and inviting with Black Doris plum, cherry, olive and floral aromas, it's juicy and supple in the mouth delivering pristine fruit flavours together with plump mouthfeel and silky texture. Medium bodied and splendidly tasty. At its best: now to 2025."

91/100 James Suckling (2017 Vintage)

"An array of ripe, purple fruit here with an air of dark, rose-like perfume. The palate carries a wealth of smooth, chalky tannins and bright raspberries. Crisp finish."
