TASTING NOTES

The Domaine Marc Brédif winery is one of the great names of the Loire. The estate has enjoyed a long and colourful history, having been established in 1893 under the original name of Château les Roches. In 1919, not long after the end of the First World War, Marc Brédif took over from his Uncle and renamed the property to mark the change of ownership. His focus was simple, to forge an unrivalled reputation for excellence amongst the estates of the Loire valley.

He invested heavily in the estate during the 1930's, building a tremendous circular storage room in the heart of its cellars, which today houses venerable vintages of sweet Vouvray, some of which date back to the 1900's! The property managed to survive the Second World War relatively unharmed and remained under family control until the 1980's. As is so often the case, family intrigue and financial necessity meant that the Domaine had to be sold, and in 1980 Baron Patrick de Ladoucette acquired the estate. Thankfully, the Baron was every bit the conscientious owner and has given new life to Marc Brédif – investing heavily and expanding their holdings to include some of the most prized Vouvray vineyards – 20 hectares in total. Picking exclusively by hand, the Domaine produces some of the most profound and immortal expressions of Chenin Blanc, in a range of styles to suit all wine lovers. Quite simply, Marc Brédif is a landmark in the Loire, not least because of the consistency of quality across an impressive range of wines.

Wine Spectator Loire Vintage Report (2015 Vintage)

"Finally, a solid vintage, easily the best since 2010. Some early spring rains hampered flowering in Sancerre, but growing season was hot and dry. Late-season rains caused thin-skinned varieties such as Gamay to face disease pressures; acidities slightly lower than usual. Cabernet Franc ripened well; Chenin Blanc excelled with both dry and sweet versions."
