TASTING NOTES

The Mastroberardino family, leaders in Italian viticulture, are largely responsible for the revival and elevation of Irpinian and Campanian winemaking post WWII. Their efforts ignited a resurgence in quality red and white wine production in all of Southern Italy. Working primarily with Campania's ancient, native varietals, Fiano, Greco, and Aglianico, Mastroberardino has resuscitated would-be extinct grapes into world class varieties.

Once a nearly forgotten varietal of ancient Irpinia, the Mastroberardino family has revived the Fiano grape into a world-class white wine. In antiquity, Fiano was known as apiana, as its sweet berries were attractive to bees. Vines were traditionally found near hazelnut orchards, which has seemingly influenced the grape's flavour profile. However, it is in the town of Avellino where the Fiano grape produces its most mineral-driven wines with long aging potential.

Mastroberardino Fiano di Avellino DOCG 2025 is an elegant, full-bodied white wine made from 100% Fiano in Campania. Delicate aromas of white flowers, citrus, herbs and dried fruits are complemented by subtle almond and nut notes. Fresh and refined, it pairs beautifully with seafood, shellfish, white fish and grilled white meats.

Winery notes (2025 Vintage)
"Fiano has ancient origins dating back to the Roman era when this grape variety was known as Vitis Apiana because of the sweetness of its berries, which were much loved by bees. After the challenging period of the 1950s and 1960s when there was a risk of losing the ancient viticultural heritage of the province, the determined efforts of Antonio Mastroberardino brought Fiano back to prominence among the most cultivated grape varieties in the province of Avellino. This also sparked interest in experiments beyond national borders on different continents. Its great elegance and natural predisposition for long aging make this wine a true treasure of Irpinia."
