TASTING NOTES

Blended variety white wines are not that common in New Zealand where single variety wines dominate. That is a shame as the Europeans have known for centuries, often the whole can offer more than the sum of the parts. This is a case in point.

A bright star indeed, Sirius White from the famed organic vineyards of Millton in Gisborne is a delicious yet somewhat enigmatic blend of Chardonnay, Viognier and Marsanne. Full of lusciously ripe stonefruit character it is lifted by the floral notes of Viognier and driven by the acidity of Marsanne. It all comes together in a texturally pleasing and surprisingly serious wine at a fantastic price.

Winery notes (2020 Vintage)

"Sirius is the brightest star visible from earth. Sirius White is predominantly Chardonnay with a whisper of Viognier and Marsanne. Our Marsanne and Viognier plantings have come of age and we now find the wine is enhanced by increased quantities of these complimentary varietals. This wine has hit new heights in both flavour and aroma. Sirius White is a marriage of Chardonnay, Viognier and Marsanne. Giving this wine a warm ripe apricot character with lifted acidity, scented white peach and honeysuckle."

Reviews for previous vintages below...

91/100 Jamie Goode, January 2021 (2019 Vintage)

"A blend of Chardonnay, Viognier and Marsanne. It's a really interesting wine, with a touch of matchstick on the nose as well as mandarin, lemon jelly and lime. The palate is fresh but has fruity depth to it, with keen acidity providing a foil to the crystalline citrus fruit. Subtle hints of wax and white pepper add interest to the spicy, tapering finish. A really attractive wine with a distinctive character. Dry and bright."

91/100 Cameron Douglas MS, August 2019 (2018 Vintage)

"From Chardonnay, Viognier and Marsanne - the bouquet reflects all three varieties with aromas of white peach, white and yellow apricot, apple and a light saline, sea breeze layer. With alight zest and lees spice layer the wine has both a youthful and intriguing complexity. Dry on the palate with a gentle creaminess, medium+ acidity and contrasting core of fruit reflecting the flavours described above. The saline layer is a constant throughout the wine adding complexity and depth. A lovely wine with an immediate enjoyment factor. Best today and through 2022."
