TASTING NOTES

From Nakano's award-winning Kinokuniya series, this junmai-shu is brewed using the same dewasanzan and yamada-nishiki rice grains as Nakano's signature junmai-shu, which gives it the same delicate balance of umami, tartness and fruity notes. But Nakano then raw-store the sake and only pasteurise it when bottled (this is the 'namachozō' method, as usually sake is twice-pasteurised), giving the sake an extra crisp and refreshing finish, making it a sake of choice for the true connoisseur. Serve chilled or warm.
