TASTING NOTES

Stefano Massone is based in the warm south eastern corner of Gavi, in the famed northern Italian region of Piemonte. Loved by the English, for it's minerality and freshness, Gavi is Italy's answer to Chablis. This delicious wine packs an amazing amount of flavour in a light to medium-bodied frame. Notes of crisp pears and apples with a lovely, lingering, refreshing finish. Masera is a single variety (Cortese), single vineyard bottling.

Gavi is a wonderfully, mineral-driven white wine made in and around the eponymous township in SE Piemonte. The only difference between "Gavi D.O.C.G." and Gavi di Gavi D.O.C.G." is that the latter can only be made of fruit grown within the borders of the Comune or township. Other than that, they're identical wines and, more importantly, utterly delicious! With its characteristic greenish tinge and notes of acacia flowers and green apple, it delivers a mineral-laden yet fruity wine with a bitter almond finish that pairs beautifully with all manner of dishes.
