TASTING NOTES

Winery notes (2025 Vintage)
"The nose is deep and layered, with black cherry, crushed blackberry and violet unfolding into flint and warm spice. Dark fruit intensity is interwoven with mineral tones and fine cedar. The palate is concentrated and linear, driven by black cherry and liquorice with a firm mineral spine. Fine-grained tannins give the wine structure, precision and poise. Elegant and composed, it carries impressive depth and clarity through to a long, focused finish.

Organically farmed, using no-till, regenerative practices, Jackson’s Block runs parallel to Felton Road. With vines planted in 1991 and 1995, 90% of the block is planted in a single clone of Pinot Noir (777). The 777 clone, on Jackson’s classic lake-bed loam, quartz and schist gravel soils exemplifies the best of Bannockburn. Known for delivering expressive, perfumed Pinot Noir, the 777 clone is ideally suited to schisty loam soils, delivering both power and elegance, with vine age resulting in consistency and complexity."

Reviews for the 2024 vintage below...

99/100 James Suckling, JamesSuckling.com (2024 Vintage)
"A linear and structured pinot noir with firm and racy tannins and aromas of spices, flint, iodine and oysters. The palate shows crushed berries and cherry blossoms. Needs time to open, but it’s superb already. From an own-rooted 777 clone with a touch of Pommard planted in the 1990s and farmed organically. Better in a few years. Drink or hold."
